LONDON – The ATP has announced the 2027 calendar, featuring 59 tournaments across 29 countries, in addition to the four Grand Slams.

The 2027 season will reinforce the ATP Tour's established global footprint, providing continuity after a landmark year that attracted 5.55 million fans on site and a projected broadcast and streaming audience surpassing one billion.

The 2027 ATP Tour calendar will feature:

- Four Grand Slams
- Nine ATP Masters 1000 tournaments, with seven in the enhanced 12-day format
- 16 ATP 500 events
- 29 ATP 250 events
- Team competitions: the United Cup, Laver Cup and Davis Cup
- The Nitto ATP Finals, held in Italy for a seventh edition
- The Next Gen ATP Finals, featuring the world's top eight players aged 20-and-under, with host city to be confirmed in 2026

The 2027 season will see the ATP continue to implement key reforms through OneVision, designed to strengthen the Tour's premium events, align the interests of players and tournaments, and enhance the fan experience. Central to this evolution are progressive tournament profit-sharing agreements, which have played a key role in delivering record levels of player compensation across the sport.

Andrea Gaudenzi, ATP Chairman, said: "The ATP Tour delivers world-class competition in some of the most iconic destinations across the world, and 2027 is set to keep raising the bar. The record 5.55 million fans attending our events speaks volumes about the strength and global appeal of tennis today. Our focus is on unlocking greater value by elevating our top-tier events and delivering the very best of our sport to the fans."
